Mount & Blade: Warband Full Version

Openbrf A: Based on your description, it seems like either you forgot to select the right resource folder, or your resource.brf file has the wrong path. Look closely at all the configuration files in your Resource folder. If you are using a campaign resource.brf file, you need to take a look at your mod name, and make sure it matches the name of the campaign. If this is just a resource.brf file, you need to make sure that the mod is named the same as the resource. EDIT: Based on your comment, what you are doing sounds good, but you need to know what you are using a resource for. You have a resource called "adidas" or "adidas" (you can tell in the mod's folder). If you want to use that file to generate the "adidas" resources, you need to change this line in your regular resource.brf: {RADIUS_R_Adidas} to this: {RADIUS_R_Adidas1} If you want to use the generated adidas1.brf file to generate the "Adidas" resource, you need to change this line to: `{RADIUS_R_Adidas2}` If that doesn't fix your problem, let us know more details about the mod. EDIT 2: The .brf files in your Resource folder have very specific names based on what resource they are generating. In your case, most of them are files called "material.brf", "texture.brf", or "texture_0.brf". You don't need any of those files to edit the "texture_0" resource. If you want to edit anything, you need to use a resource.brf file that is named "texture_0.brf" or "texture.brf" EDIT 3: If you're having problems with the .brf files you are using in your Resource folder, you can use a brf converter to convert your resource.brf files to an XML format. Then you can use your favorite XML editor to load your edited resource into your game. I would recommend looking at and
